

DUBLIN BAY UNESCO BIOSPHERE DISCOVERY CENTRE

Dublin City Council is continuing with the design and planning development for an exciting project to build a Discovery Centre in the heart of the Dublin Bay UNESCO Biosphere on Bull Island. An ambitious yet sensitive design that creates a powerful place for discovery and learning the Centre will illustrate and interpret Bull Island, Dublin Bay, the world network of Biosphere Regions and global climate issues.

As part of ongoing engagement we are seeking your views on the proposal in advance of completing the design development and lodgement of a planning application in 2020.

A public open event will take place in the Red Stables in St. Anne's Park from 2pm until 8pm on Tuesday the 3rd of December.

All are welcome to attend and meet the design team.
